BEISEKER NEWS

BEISEKER. — Mrs. Harben of Calgary spent a few days visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lou Brosteaux. She is the latter's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Olsen accompanied the Fletchers of Brant on a motor trip to Edmonton over the week-end.

Mrs. Nick Velker and children spent the week-end visiting the former's parents at Twining.

A number of young couples from Beiseker attended a house warming in Calgary. Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Leiske, formerly of Beiseker, was the host and hostess.

The men of the district to be served by the new rural electrification are making post holes while the sun shines instead of the proverbial hay.

The regular meeting of the C.W.L. was held in the meeting room of the Memorial hall. The chief topic on the agenda was the Parish Christmas concert to be held on December 18.

Charlie Grabinsky is driving a new Ford car.

Mr. Fred Campbell attended the Trustees convention in Calgary recently. He was made one of the directors.

Football Game

BEISEKER. — The Beiseker football team lost a hard-fought battle to Claresholm last Sunday at Beiseker. The final score was 11-0 for Claresholm, as a result of two touchdowns and a convert. Beiseker was a little slow in getting rolling but menaced the Claresholm goal line several times. Claresholm threatened to steam-roll across Beiseker's line at other times but was smashed back by desperate defence.

The game was very rough, and held many thrills for our local fans. Mr. Bunyan, the Beiseker coach, was heard to remark after the game, "Practice does make perfect after all."

The season is now a closed book and the team wishes to thank all of the grand people who helped to make this sport possible, even though they had a difficult time understanding it.

Dr. Robinson Warns Of Possible Power Rationing

CALGARY. — Dr. J. L. Robinson, Alberta's minister of industries and labor, warned in an interview here recently that there is a distinct possibility of power rationing in the province this winter.

"The situation is critical, although not hopeless," Dr. Robinson said. "The tremendous increase in industrial power usage, coupled with a dry year, is responsible. I think this will be the most critical year in the Alberta situation."

C.Y.O. Holds Meeting

BEISEKER. — The monthly meeting of the C.Y.O. was held on Monday, Nov. 14. The business meeting was followed by the first in the series of instructions on marriage.

A few games of bingo were played and enjoyed by all. A delicious lunch was served by the social committee.

Sealskin for Cinderella

Canada's Taj Mahal

The following article is submitted by Mr. A. E. Foster. It appeared in a newspaper recently. The Mr. Foster referred to in the article is an uncle of Mr. A. E. Foster living in Sanguedo.

One of the most beautiful and unusual memorials in Ontario, if not in Canada, is comparatively unknown to residents of Ontario and Canada. It is the temple built by Thomas Foster, one-time mayor of Toronto, as a memorial for himself and his family, near Uxbridge, Ontario. It was surprising to read recently an article by John E. Mason in the Vancouver Province, describing the Foster Tomb. Mr. Mason has done a real service in calling attention to a structure which must be one of the most beautiful pieces of architecture in all Canada. He writes:

Canada has its own Taj Mahal. Canadian and United States tourists traveling to and from Ontario's Lake Simcoe summer resorts, and who use the more leisurely route over the country highway between Beaverton and Uxbridge, Ont., never fail to stop and admire the beautiful Thomas Foster Memorial Temple, better known as the "Canadian Taj Mahal," located on the seventh concession of Scott Township, three miles north of Uxbridge.

Some years ago the late Thomas Foster, who enjoyed the sobriquet "Honest Tom" when he was mayor of Toronto during 1925-26-27, was traveling in India and viewed the world famous Taj Mahal at Agra, erected in 1632 by Shah Jehan for his favorite wife.

The result of this visit was an inspiration to erect a mortuary chapel of a similar style adjacent to the Thomas Foster Memorial Cemetery which serves the community in which he spent his boyhood.

Built at a cost of $200,000 in 1936, the structure is sumptuously Byzantine in form but chastely modern in detail. Enduring materials were used in its construction to combat rigors of Canadian winters.

As the architecture of India is as foreign to Canada as are religions of that country, it could not be considered. However, the earliest forms of Christian architecture, those of the eastern Roman Empire, Byzantium, proved more adaptable and were the inspiration for a new and entirely original design.

The temple, or Byzantine tomb, to properly designate it, has a dome 23 feet in diameter and 60 feet high, stands on a terrace 90 feet long and 87 feet wide.

The motif of the structure inside and out is the story of life and the triumph over death. With the building is a modern chapel with thick marble pillars of green and two shades of brown. Huge archways converging on the dome are constructed in intricately designed mosaic tile.

The chapel is complete in every detail, with marble altar, Rocherons marble pulpit, small organ, indirect lighting and a modern heating plant. Floors are of rich-colored terrazzo and mosaics wrought in symbolic designs.

On entering, one crosses the River Styx on which float water lilies and lily pads.

The motive that underlies the work of the Creator is suggested in the general design of the floor beneath the great dome. This motif typifying life radiates from the Greek letters "Alpha" and "Omega", which in turn flank the Christian symbol — denoting Christ. The laurel wreath of victory over death encircles the central motive.

Under each of the four great arches a marble screen with balustrade separates the crossing from transepts, apse and nave. Sixteen marble columns, four to each screen, supporting three arches with pierced marble tympanum above, are features of the interior.

The columns are in vari-colored Italian marbles with carved Devon stone capitals and dassetrets. Each capital differs from its neighbors and is carved with the heraldic symbol of one of the saints or apostles.

The southern transept contains three crypts. One contains the remains of Thomas Foster's daughter, Elizabeth McCauley Foster; another his wife, Ruby Foster; while the third contains the remains of Thomas Foster, who died in 1945 at the age of 93 years. Above each crypt is a beautiful memorial window bearing a modest memorial shield. Six basement crypts are available for temporary community winter burials and removable floor slabs provide for lowering caskets to the level below.

Thomas Foster, or Honest Tom, as he was known around Toronto, was a more or less peculiar character, but a shrewd man of business.

Always in the best of health, he built his temple at the age of 84. He belonged to a generation of people who acquired prominence and wealth through extensive Toronto realty holdings which greatly increased in value with the growth of the city.

While he was chief magistrate of Toronto he tossed dignity to the winds and collected rents from his tenants in person. Should a tenant ask for a minor repair on any of these occasions he would doff his coat, take tools and materials from his car and make the necessary repairs in person, on the spot. He believed and practised strict economy both personally and in the running of the city of which he was mayor.

He invariably clamped down on almost every board of control report which would spend the city's cash.

He was a friend of the poor, and during his lifetime restored two historic churches, St. Andrews, at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., and the Mohawk Chapel at Brantford, Ont.

In appreciation of his work at Brantford the Mohawk tribe of the Six Nations Reserve visited him at his home in Toronto and made him an Indian chief, naming him Chief New House.

Jack Bird Recalls Visit To Land of Midnight Sun

By JACK BIRD

(This is the first instalment of a series by Mr. Bird on The Northland, written especially for Community Publications)

"The sun doesn't set in the west in these latitudes," said Old Jim, waving a gnarled hand in the general direction of the mouth of the Churchill River.

"It works well over toward the northwest before going down. And in summer you get more of it, too, of course, than they do farther south. Right now (it was the middle of August) the sun up here sets five minutes to 8, while 600 miles south, at Winnipeg, it sets about 25 to 8."

I had been strolling along that stretch of boulder-strewn river-shore between the big white 2 1-2 million bushel elevator at Churchill and the new whale factory when I met this man I was to come to know as "Old Jim."

He was a thick-built, middle-sized oldster, grey-bearded, with an easy-going affable manner. I liked him at once, and took him to be 65 or so. But he insisted he was 80—80 last January.

"There's something about this north country that lays hold of one," Old Jim went on in answer to my query as to why a man of his age was still tramping the trails. "I was born in the States, of Canadian parents. But the past 20 years I been dividing my time 'tween here and California. Prospecting's my job, and Herb Lake's my summer stamping grounds."

Had he made any strikes yet? I wanted to know. No, he hadn't—that is, nothing to speak of. But he did manage to keep alive. He liked the life, and believed he would turn up something worthwhile yet.

We were passing some small one-room shacks near which a number of husky dogs were chained. I went over to one and tried to make friends. But the brute jerked toward me with a snarl and a bark, and I went no closer.

"Those are Indians' dogs," my companion explained. "It's uncanny the intelligence these northland dogs have. Why, they're almost human. Indian dogs don't usually make friends with a white man at all. Nor as a rule will a white man's huskies make friends with an Indian."

Other trappers and prospectors were to tell me the same. Vic Wetmore, a game warden in those parts, told me he was once driving his five-dog team over the trail when he met an Indian coming toward him also with a five-dog team. Each man guided his dogs off the trail to allow the other to pass. But the very moment those two teams were opposite each other, they jumped, as if by pre arrangement at each other's throats in a snarling, yelping, barking mass of dogs and tangled harness. So it would seem that we have race hatred even in the dog-kingdom.

I thought the Yukon huskies larger than the Churchill variety. Very few around Whitehorse had I seen chained up. They were big brutes—big as timber wolves, I'd say. And they will come bounding down the road toward you. You think at first they mean to jump on you and tear you apart. But they really were friendly, I learned, and only wanted to play.

Famous People Human But More Dressed Up

By JAY LLOYD

If this series gives anyone the idea that every important, or famous, person a newspaperman interviews leaves an indelible impression, it just isn't so.

For a short period (only) I kept newspaper clippings of all my interviews. In looking them over some time later I was startled to find how many persons (who would certainly consider themselves important) had completely faded from memory.

The first lesson—almost a shock—the interviewer gets is that famous persons are only human beings a little more fortunate, a little more expert—a little more dressed up—than the average. Almost invariably a man is famous for some ONE thing. Get him out of his line and he is certainly average, sometimes below average.

It is a bit unfair to single him out, but Arthur Bryant once astonished me by a confession along this line. I had been questioning him about the economic phases of the Napoleonic wars, on which, of course (as anyone who knows anything about the works of this excellent British historian), he is an expert.

Finally he said: "I know nothing about economics. It is a subject I should like to study some time when I get the time."

I thought at first (as possibly the reader did when I repeated it) that he was pulling my leg. But no, he was most sincere.

Another Arthur I remember quite vividly because of his complete deflation of my ego. For Arthur Koestler I had framed what I thought was a very pointed and contentious question.

It was at the end of a lecture he gave at the Churchill Club in London; scene, to the privileged few, during the war of contacts with the foremost men in English life.

Koestler simply said, "I agree," and sat down. My self-esteem went down with a bang which should have shook the room.

Also at the Churchill Club I met Viscount Cecil under circumstances so vastly different, and yet in a way, so peculiarly similar that even now Lord Cecil seems to me the link between the pre- and post-war worlds.

The Churchill Club meeting was at a time when the United Nations was more an idea than a reality. Yet Lord Cecil had already transferred to it all the great faith he had had in the League of Nations, for which he had done so much.

The previous meeting (although not the first time I met him) was in those early days of the war—and a continent apart—when Hitler was beginning to run roughshod over Europe. Even then Viscount Cecil had not lost faith in the League of Nations.

At that time, he was the only person I knew who hadn't.

I shall always remember the "interview" with the brother of the Japanese Emperor (even though I can't recall how to spell his name, though I think it was Titchibou) because as the brother of the "Son of Heaven" he was not allowed to give an interview directly, which was conducted in his name by one of the generals in the party, while he sat in an adjoining room.

The interview with Grand Duchess Martha of Luxembourg and Prince Phillip because it was very shortly after they had escaped one step ahead of the Germans, and they told me all about their adventures.

With Lord Stanley, partly because it was very shortly before the death of that British Foreign Minister, but mostly because of the gentle rebuke he administered to a third secretary in the High Commissioner's office. When I asked Lord Stanley a particular question, the secretary said that if I did not refrain from asking embarrassing questions he would have to ask me to leave.

Lord Stanley left a moment's pause, then said: "I think that is a very intelligent question and I intend to answer it."

It WAS a leading question and I doubt if he would have answered it directly had it not been for interference of the secretary. No one objected for the rest of the interview no matter what I asked.

TRAFFIC EXPERT LISTS WAY TO CUT ACCIDENTS

Centre striping of highways stands high on the list of suggestions for greater safety on these traffic routes. In Alberta hundreds of miles have been given this treatment and the work is being extended.

A traffic expert has made the following suggestions to cut down accidents:

Sufficient right-of-way for adequate roadways, centre strips, shoulders, and gutters, ditches, and sidewalks as required.

Choice of alignment and treatment of curves and grades to provide adequate sight distances and traction for safety for expected volumes and speeds of traffic at each location.

Separation of grades at important highway and rail-highway crossings.

Interchanges with appropriate curvature and acceleration and deceleration lanes for vehicles entering and leaving traffic at important intersections.

Limitation of access where necessary.

Application of the standards for safe design in "Inter-regional Highways" that apply to other streets and highways, including alignment, treatment of curves and grades, and uniformity of pavement widths for anticipated traffic volumes and speeds.

Inclusion of standard traffic control devices, adequate lighting, sidewalks, pedestrian islands and other facilities for traffic safety in the initial plans for each project; installation of these in the original construction prior to opening roadways for public use.

Identification of high accident locations and treatment through application of such remedies as channelization, elimination of view obstructions, use of traffic control devices, installation of lighting, and reconstruction.

Modernization of traffic signs, signals and markings to provide greater uniformity and flexibility of operation.

Installation of such special facilities for pedestrians as safety islands, barricades, sidewalks and lighting where these are needed for safety.

Repair of streets and highways which deteriorated during the war.

MORE THAN JUST FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Sometimes the economics of food production seems to us—to put it mildly—a bit opaque.

If the farmer has a poor crop he suffers because he has little produce to sell. If he has a good crop he may suffer also because of low prices. The way to avoid this, the U.S.A. has been proclaiming, is for the government to support farm prices by buying surpluses and taking them off the market.

Collier's Magazine, in its December 5th issue, is beginning to get a guilty conscience about this. Recently it ran an article alleging that inmates of county poor houses, supported by public funds, were on the verge of starvation. Instead of the government storing dried eggs in a cave, the magazine asks, why doesn't it distribute some of the surplus to the poor houses?

The Montreal Gazette, which has been campaigning to show the stupidity of destroying food, recently pointed to the excellent example of the Dutch government. Having a surplus of 200,000 tons of vegetables which could not be sold, Holland sent the food as a gift to the Rhur, even paying the transportation. The result of this action was an improvement in trade relations between Germany and Holland. "It resulted in hundreds of Marxists re-examining their own philosophy of hatred," stated the Gazette.

The United States objected to the Food and Agricultural Organization's original plan for a world food board to take over food surpluses and supervise redistribution, and is reported to be equally cold towards a more recent proposal for a food clearing house along lines of a public corporation.

U.S.A. is said to be apprehensive that the country disposing of surpluses would lose control of disposition, which might mean they would go to one of the Iron Curtain countries and be traded for military supplies.

"Meanwhile," as the Christian Science Monitor points out, "mountainous grain surpluses are looming on the harvest horizon (in U.S.A.), with Agriculture Department officials searching more and more avidly for overseas markets."

Commenting on the Dutch solution to surpluses, the Oxford Group news agency "New World" states: "Out of man-splitting self-concern and disagreement it produced a nation-uniting force. It met the tidal wave of an idea that cannot be legislated, organized or bombed out of existence, and overcame it with the power of a superior idea."

While we may have misgivings that more than a change of heart is necessary to eliminate the anomaly of poverty amid plenty, certainly belief that meeting human needs is the prime purpose of production might help. Changing men's hearts and minds looks like a long journey but it undoubtedly the right road to travel.

At least—at the moment at any rate—no other presents a more hopeful vista at the end.

Fall Management of Laying Flock

With most of the pullets housed at this time of year special care must be given to management practices, say poultry officials of the Alberta Department of Agriculture.

This care is needed to keep the birds in good condition for high production during the winter months. On the range, pullets have an abundance of fresh air. Following their removal to the laying house, they soon develop colds unless care is taken. A good practice is to leave all windows out of the house at first, so that the birds may have as much fresh air as possible.

The birds should not be exposed to draughts, however, and they should have clean and especially dry quarters at all times. Poultry can stand cold providing it is dry, but dampness and lack of fresh air are dangerous to the health of the flock.

If colds or roup develop they are usually caused by a Vitamin A deficiency. A good practice is to feed a little fish oil three or four times each month from the time the pullets are housed until they have completed their laying year. Fish oil can be fed at the rate of one cup for every one hundred chickens. The oil should be fed each evening for four or five feeds and repeated each month.

An easy way to feed the fish oil is to warm the grain to be used for the night feeding and warm the oil, pour it over the grain and stir thoroughly. The oil-coated grain can then be fed in troughs, making sure that there is plenty of trough space for all the birds to feed at one time.

Handle the birds at least one evening each week after they have gone to roost to ascertain the body condition of the flock. Birds should be fed sufficient quantities of whole grains to keep them in good flesh. If the flock starts to go down in weight, a little extra grain should be fed.

For Work or Play

Girls and women should learn to distinguish between "work" shoes and "play" shoes. For standing all day the feet need firm, comfortable support and a low heel, otherwise the balance of the whole body is upset and backache may be caused. Spike heels should be saved for dancing. Your feet are probably the most abused part of your body. Treat them to well-fitting, comfortable shoes.

Dear Editor

The St. Albert C.Y.O. would like you to publish the following news in the St. Albert Gazette.

We all enjoy your little paper very much.

Thank you.

Yours truly,

SCRIPTURAL MEDITATIONS

By AINSLEY BLAIR

"A life in Christ is a life of restfulness. There may be no ecstasy of feeling, but there should be an abiding peace trust. Your hope is not in yourself; it is in Christ. Your weakness is united to His strength, your ignorance to His wisdom, your frailty to His enduring might. So you are not to look to yourself, not to let the mind dwell upon self, but look to Christ. Let the mind dwell upon His love, upon the beauty, the perfection, of His character. Christ in His self-denial, Christ in His humiliation, Christ in His purity and holiness, Christ in His matchless love,—this is the subject for the soul's contemplation. It is by loving Him, copying His, depending wholly upon Him, that you are to be transformed into His likeness."—"Steps to Christ."

WHAT DEFEATED MR. HLYNKA?

From the Vegreville Observer
I have found some amusement recently in reading portions of Hansard in which references are made as to how Mr. Decore defeated Mr. Hlynka on June 27th last.

The simple explanation is that Mr. Decore got more votes than Mr. Hlynka.

Mr. Shaw of Red Deer and Mr. Low of Peace River have been very active in accusing Mr. Decore of having been elected by Communist votes. They are both wrong. It is possible, even probable, that the Communists who went to the polls voted for Mr. Decore; so did the C.C.F., those who

In some countries begging is a respectable profession. In some places the poorer classes consider that begging is just as good a way of making a living as any other.

In Canada, however, we aren't tolerant of any kind of beggars. A destitute man caught "panhandling" is given 10 days in jail. That is the official attitude. As individuals we would probably not be disposed to condemn a needy beggar, but when a well-to-do beggar comes begging (particularly if he is better off than we are) we get sore and think something ought to be done about it.

And as a hard-working newspaper man, I would like to do something about wealthy publicity beggars.

PUBLICITY COSTS MONEY

One of the hardest things for us to do is to overcome the quite prevalent attitude that a newspaperman should freely give space in his paper to every worthwhile cause that comes along.

Take a charitable organization such as the Red Cross. They don't come to us and say: "Will you please publish this appeal for funds free in your paper. We are doing this for a good cause and you should be willing to GIVE space in your paper to help us."

Why doesn't the Red Cross do that? Because they know a newspaperman has to pay wages, overhead, newsprint and taxes just like the corner grocer has to pay wages, overhead, wholesale houses and taxes.

The Red Cross doesn't walk up to your corner grocer and say: "We are a charity organization and want to distribute free groceries to needy persons in this district. Please give us groceries, free."

When the Red Cross runs a publicity campaign they pay for it just like anyone else. And when we donate to the Red Cross we do it just like anyone else. We are not asked to take our "groceries" voted; but so did many of Mr. Hlynka's former supporters. This constituency owed nothing whatsoever to Mr. Hlynka. He was a non-resident and never showed up round these parts except for a brief time each summer. That's what licked him, plus, of course, Mr. Decore's campaign.

I would like to go into this at some length, but Mr. Decore is perfectly able to take care of himself.

Considering the kindness the Liberals of Vegreville extended to Mr. Low in 1940, that ungrateful cuss should keep his mouth shut.

PUBLICITY BEGGARS

By T. W. PUE

off the shelf and give them away wholesale.

If I were to write to the Canadian General Electric Company for "free" electrical installations, do you think I'd get them? Not on your life! They'd say I was absolutely nuts—give me credit for being crazier than I am. Yet when C.G.E. opened a new district head office in Edmonton they didn't mind sending us a request to run a picture of the new building in our paper.

The advertising agency through whom it was sent asked us for our rates, a trick to make us think the company would later run some paid advertising.

We swallowed the gag, hook, line and sinker. Did we get a nice letter of "thank you" from C.G.E. for running this free publicity for them? Not on your life! A street beggar would be more courteous than that.

T. W. Pue

PUBLICITY RELEASES

A whole host of parasitic publicity agents has been created by the stupidity of newspapermen in running free "news releases." These drones proposition a company, such as Toni Home Permanents something like this: "We'll get advertising in all the weekly papers for you, without having to pay the poor newspaperman for his work. We'll send a 'news' release accompanied by a picture of two pretty twins, the poor dopes will run these free of charge, and you'll get all that advertising for nothing (except our rake-off)."

And we newspapermen do it, without any pay, without any credit, without even a "thank-you" note. How spineless can you get!?

LOCK, KEY AND YALE

The latest piece of beggary was sent to us by the representatives of the Yale & Towns Company of St. Catharines, Ont. If we were to ask this company to give us free what they sell (keys, locks, etc.), I can imagine the blank amazement that would flood the fine face of Ellis H. Jones, the manager. Yet they expect us to give them, absolutely free, space to the value of $5.00 in each of our papers—space that we have to sell in order to pay wages, taxes, newsprint and other expenses.

Surely this company makes enough on their merchandise to not have to go begging from us!

Ottawa and Municipal Tax

From the Edmonton Journal

Municipalities right across the dominion will hope that the federal government will not long delay announcement of its reported decision to pay grants in lieu of local taxes. A Canadian Press dispatch states Prime Minister St. Laurent is expected to make the announcement shortly.

More than two years ago, Watson Sellar, auditor-general of Canada, recommended to parliament that the federal government should pay municipal taxes on its property, "provided provincial governments agree to do the same."

Last March, the Alberta government appropriated $50,000 for "grants to municipalities in lieu of taxes." This was a limited concession, however, for Premier Manning explained that it would be paid only on "government-owned buildings used for certain specified commercial purposes."

No government, federal, or provincial, is willing to abandon its constitutional right to exemption from taxation of any kind. That is why they all describe anything they do pay to municipalities as "grants in lieu of taxes."

If the dominion government goes this far, it is to be hoped that all provincial governments will go as far. Many crown companies already pay local taxes, especially those that are completely commercial in character. The C.N.R. is an example. All should do so.

Whatever the senior governments may call them—grants or donations—the payments could fairly be described as conscience money. It has taken years of public agitation by the hard-pressed municipalities to arouse the lethargic consciences of federal and provincial governments.

"A farm is a hunk of land on which, if you get up early enough mornings and work late enough nights, you'll make a fortune—if you strike oil."—Fibber McGee. In Alberta, not even then, Fibber.

Better Beware
Mister Bruin!

—Central Press Canadian

TWO nurses from Phoenix, Arizona, went hunting deer and came back with a 250-pound bear. Said Mr. Bruin had attacked them. This cute little fellow doesn't look dangerous. Unless perhaps the little dears tried to give him a bear hug.

ODDS ON SPORT

By L. H. J.

Connie Mack, venerable manager of Philadelphia Athletics, is writing a book for the youngsters covering all phases of baseball. It is not scheduled for publication until March. Odds on that it would have proven a popular Christmas gift had someone thought of getting it out in time for the Yuletide trade.

Lacrosse is becoming popular in England. Interest in the sport was stimulated when lacrosse formed one of two exhibition games in the 1948 Olympics. England would also like to build an indoor track but promoters are unable to get the necessary import license for Canadian timber to build it.

Odds are even that the N.H.L. next season, at the latest, will reinstitute overtime games during the regular schedule. After two of three games played on November 13th ended in a stalemate, hockey fans were beginning to get vocal in disapproval of the rule. Overtime was abandoned during the war because of travel conditions and never has been returned.

If the refereeing at Calgary on Friday was anything like the radio commentator made it sound, then Calgary should list Benny Rosen as an extra player. According to the old-time style of hockey, he could be playing the "Rover" position.

The "this-is-my-last-year" season for rugby players is now on. What are the odds that half of those now retiring won't be back on the gridiron again when once again it is time to boot that pig-skin around?

The crystal ball says Calgary won't have such an easy time dominating senior western rugby football next year. Edmonton will be making a determined effort to build a contending team, and will have the advantage of a year's experienced and more seasoned players. Stamps will likely be losing some of their experienced material; and it is often more difficult to keep a power-house team that way than to build a mediocre into a good team. Winnipeg and Regina will also be looking for a championship. 'Peg will have the smart of a poor season to drive them on.

Pro Football Teams Outdrawing Colleges

Attendance at pro football games is on the increase while that at collegiate contests is declining.

That would appear to be the implication of figures released by the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum.

Attendance for professional games was 15 per cent above that for 1948 while college games dropped 12.3 per cent. And for the first time since 1946, when the pro game was introduced to Los Angeles the professional teams were outdrawing the collegians.

What effect television has had on attendance is still uncertain. Probably high prices of tickets are also a depressive factor.

England Advances To World Finals

By defeating the Irish soccer team by nine goals to two, England made certain of a place in the world soccer tournament in Brazil next year.

Scotland, who also beat Ireland and Wales, is the other runner-up in the home tournament. Winners and runners-up participate in the world classic.

England and Scotland will meet next April to decide the British championship.

England played picture book soccer in defeating Ireland on a greasy field.

Which Size Ball Does Davis Like?

Considerable interest is being aroused on whether Glenn Davis, Army's immortal footballer, will seek a professional career in football or baseball.

The speed which served Davis well on the football field also has been helpful in baseball, and during his three years in college baseball he stole 64 bases. His overall batting average is .403.

Rumor is that he will receive one of the highest salaries ever offered a professional football player for playing with the Los Angeles team, The Rams.

Building Heights Near Airfields Restricted

Location and height of buildings of buildings in the vicinity of airfields in Sturgeon Municipal District in future are to be regulated.

At its November meeting, Council passed a by-law for the purpose under the Town Planning Act.

A notice of intention had been advertised and anyone who objected to the law could have appeared at the meeting to protest but no one turned up.

Prepare Liners For Next Year's Trade

LONDON.—Spring-cleaning has begun on the world's greatest Atlantic fleet, the Cunard White Star Liners, in preparation for next year's sailings.

Ships are being withdrawn at intervals from the service, the Queen Mary already being in dry dock in Southampton. She will be followed by the Mauretania and the 83,000-ton Queen Elizabeth, the largest ship afloat in the world.

Other liners—the Caronia, Britannic, Franconia, Media, Parthia,

Fashions

The dinner, dancing, theatre frock, carefully handled to balance the day length-skirt is a boon for those of us that like to dress up at night without climbing into a spectacular or difficult-to-handle evening frock, the sort of thing we properly save for very grand occasions. This one is in black velvet with a petal-like neckline that is encrusted with black lace laid over flesh colored chiffon, with dainty frills of the lace above the points. The dress is worn over a taffeta petticoat that makes it rustle.

Fashions in Hats For "Teen Agers"

LONDON.—(Special)—Some of the most effective hats shown recently in London by the Millinery Information Centre, came into the teen-age groups where the prices were also very low—under 15 shillings in some cases.

Typical styles were a hat in deep blue felt with roll brim and rabbit-ears pulled out of the crown, a simple Robin Hood style in catkin-gold corduroy with side mount of marabout and pheasant feathers and a new version of the "beanie" or skull cap in moss-green velvet finished with a sweeping multi-fur trim.

The parade indicated that variations on the head-fitting skull cap, now firmly established, will most likely prove best sellers for autumn and winter, says the Fashion Trade Weekly.

Styles shown ranged from feather trimmed felts worn with high-collared coats to velvet Juliet caps trimmed in various ways with "jewelled" studding, feathers and circular veils for formal afternoon and evening wear. Alternative hats promoted for wear with big collars were shovel brimmed bonnets (expected to appeal to women who feel they cannot wear brimless hats) and high-crowned helmets with feather trims climbing higher still.

South Edmonton Liberal Takes Ottawa Spotlight

George Prudham, business man of South Edmonton and Liberal member for Edmonton West received plaudits of the House of Commons in his speech on the housing bill.

and Samaria—are being renovated at Liverpool between this month and January.

Mr. Prudham had been mentioned in the eastern papers as a cabinet possibility and it was noted that Prime Minister St. Laurent sat in the house listening while Prudham spoke after the dinner recess toward the end of a long, long parliamentary day.

Interest was renewed, later, when Opposition Leader George Drew referred to one Liberal speaker as having been "preaching for a call," (angling for a cabinet job). This was mistakenly understood by some to refer to Prudham. Actually the shaft appears to have been aimed at David Croll, member for Toronto Spadina, also mentioned as a strong-cabinet possibility.

Drew's only direct reference to Prudham was to commend him for having put in a word for the use of modern materials and new housing types.

Mr. Prudham made three new points in the debate.

1. Building workers are not overpaid. Taking the seasonal nature of the work into consideration, they do not average much more than $200 a month.

2. He said, "we pay for our landlord's house or we pay for our own. If we live in a subsidized house, we pay for it partly by taxes... subsidized housing is a negative approach to the problem."

3. He urged that, while the housing emergency exists, the labor unions should consider accepting a 44-hour working week, rather than the 40-hour week as at present. This would mean more wages to the workers and a boost of perhaps 10 per cent in housing production.

Canadian Delegates Named For I.L.O. Geneva Meeting

Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, Minister of Labor, recently announced the names of Canada's delegates to the third session of the Industrial Committee on Iron and Steel of the International Labor Organization, to be held in Geneva from Nov. 22 to Dec. 2, 1949.

The Industrial Committee on Iron and Steel was established to discuss problems on the iron and steel industry, the minister stated. As in the case of other I.L.O. committees, each country's delegation to the meeting would be tripartite, consisting of representation from government, employers and workers.

J. E. Matthews, M.P. for Brandon and F. J. Ainsborough of Toronto, Industrial Relations Officer in the Department of Labor, will be the Canadian government representatives on the committee.

Employers will be represented by Aubrey L. Lott, Manager of Industrial Relations, the Steel Company of Canada, Limited, of Hamilton, Ont., and P. J. Power, Superintendent of Industrial Relations, Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation of Sydney, N.S.

This Is A "Dilly"

Dill L. Pickle, native of Rolling Fork, Miss., is employed—yes, you guessed it!—as a salesman for a pickling firm.

In 1948 he was chosen as picklers' "Man of the Year." In 1949 he was chosen "Man of Distinction" during National Pickle Week, which allegedly gives him the pickle world's title.

If there is anything in this business of having a name appropriate to your occupation, we should like to apply to court to have ours changed to Lazybones Moneybags.

Export Value of Cheese Emphasized This Week

Almost since the inception of the dairy industry in this country, and certainly since Confederation, cheese has been an important factor in our export trade.

It is a curious fact that while Canadians themselves have not been great cheese eaters, our average consumption is only about half that of other countries, we have for better than a hundred years depended on the cheese industry for a substantial share of our food exports.

Actually cheese has produced millions of dollars for this country. Yearly export figures fluctuate greatly, some years as much as 150 million pounds, and in 1949 as little as 40 million pounds, but year after year our cheese found a ready market abroad and brought needed export dollars to this country. Even if we never appreciated our cheese as we might have done, the fact remains that others found it a good food.

Today a great many different varieties of cheese are produced in Canada, some of them copies of famous Old World cheeses which can hardly be distinguished from high-priced imports. The backbone of the industry remains the Canadian Cheddar type, a cheese which improves with age and is greatly admired for its own qualities and as a blend for the many tasty processed and packaged cheeses which have become so popular in recent years.

National Cheese Week which is now under way is simply an attempt to tell Canadians something about this old industry which has contributed so much to our wealth and prestige abroad. As is natural, Canadians take pride in their industries and the cheese making industry is one almost as old as Canada.

Official Figures On World War II

Through the courtesy of Frederick N. Beardmore, of the Mount Royal Club, Montreal, some interesting official figures on World War II have been provided to Community Publications:

The number of Allied killed all over the world was 502,740 for the British Commonwealth, and 322,188 for the United States.

U-BOAT LOSSES

Destroyed By:	German	Italian
British Forces	525	69
United States
Forces	174	5
Other and Unknown
Causes	82	11
Total	781	85

Out of 781 German and 85 Italian U-Boats destroyed in the European theatre, the Atlantic and Indian Oceans, 594 were accounted for by British Sea and Air Forces, who also disposed of all the German battleships, cruisers and destroyers, besides destroying or capturing the whole Italian Fleet.

When Casablanca was reached in 1943, it was a fact that no U.S.A. bomber plane had cast a daylight bomb on Germany. However, very soon the fruition of the great exertions the Americans were making was to come, but up until the end of 1943 the British discharge of bombs upon Germany had in the aggregate exceeded by eight (8) tons to one those cast from U.S.A. machines by day or night and it was not until the Spring of 1944 that the enormous preponderance of discharge was achieved by the United States.

SHIPPING LOSSES (WORLD TOTAL)

	Gross Tons
British	11,357,000
United States	3,334,000
Other Allied Nations	6,503,000

Of these losses 80 per cent were suffered in the Atlantic Ocean including British Coastal Waters and the North Sea—only five per cent were lost in the Pacific.

War declared between Great Britain and Germany, September 1, 1939.

Canada declared war on Germany, September 3, 1939.

Pearl Harbour, December 7, 1941
War declared between U.S.A. and Germany, December 11, 1941.

Credit Unions Now Are Big Business

Credit Unions—co-operative savings and lending institutions—are quite a big business in Canada, and their operations are increasing.

In 1939 there were 844 credit unions with a total membership of 151,554 and assets of $20 million. Last year there were 2,608, with 850,608 members and assets of over $250 million.

The first credit union in North America was started at Levis, Que., 50 years ago, and until 1930 development was slow. From that time on, however, the idea spread quickly from coast to coast and unions were legally incorporated and recognized in every province.

New Small Ford?

Ford of England is working on a new 1950 model, reports The Financial Post. If this can sell in Canada for a price between $1,000 and $1,500, it may prove the answer (so far as that company is concerned) to the small, "economy" car enigma which has plagued manufacturers on this continent for many years.

Already Lay Plans For Next Year's Crop

Harvesting is over. Grain is gathered in and farmers will soon begin to lay their plans for next year's crops.

The first consideration must be the kind of crops to sow and the kind of seed to use. More and more farmers are beginning to realize the high value to them of the use each year of some registered seed, for it is the highest quality seed obtainable, according to H. G. L. Strange, director of "The Crop Testing Plan."

A few bushels of registered seed, sown with care on a few acres, will provide larger quantities for sowing the following year on a larger acreage, which will all return to the farmer the original cost of seed over and over again in improved yields and in higher grades. Because of drought in some areas and frost in others, registered seed is none too plentiful this year.

Those farmers, therefore, who are considering the use of registered seed—and they could not consider the use of anything better—should place their orders for registered and certified seed with their elevator agents as quickly as possible to give seed growers time to know the demand and so to make preparations for cleaning their seed, for sacking it, and having it sealed by government inspectors.

ONTARIO GLIDER PASSES TEST FLIGHT

—Central Press Canadian
This glider, built for $700 in the University of Toronto Electrical Building, sailed gracefully at 2,000 feet above Oshawa last Saturday in its initial test flight. Built by the university's aeronautical students, it was towed aloft by a Tiger Moth plane. Les Racey, left, who directed the building of the plane, piloted the craft and said it "handled nicely."

$90,768 Claims

Since the unsatisfied judgment fund was established by the Alberta government in 1947, motorists have paid in the large total of $520,946, according to official figures issued recently.

Since the fund was established, the total sum paid in claims was $90,768. At the end of August of this year, there was a surplus in the fund of $420,178.

When the fund was established in 1947, it was designed under legislation authorizing it to cover claims of the innocent victims of motor accidents who were unable to collect compensation from the car owner or other party responsible.

MEET ACCIDENT NEEDS

Various instances were recalled where breadwinners in families, mothers and others had been seriously injured in car accidents. As the person responsible was unable to pay compensation in many instances the unfortunate victim, probably injured for life, had no means of obtaining damages by civil action in the courts. Also, there were other cases where a parent was fatally injured and left a family in necessitous circumstances.

The provincial government decided to set up a fund to assure compensation in such cases. This was financed by a levy of $1 on each motorist, payable at the time the annual license was applied for.

This levy has been imposed upon Alberta motorists for the last three years, 1947, 1948 and 1949.

$41,130 IN CLAIMS

According to the provincial statement, the actual sum paid out in settlement of claims was $41,130 in the three-year period, or an average of a little over $13,000 a year. The remainder of the $90,000 total was used to pay medical and hospital bills of accident victims.

In five months of this year, 40 persons made claims against the fund. Of these, 30 received pay-

OIL REPORT

OTTAWA. — Leduc and Redwater oil fields contributed most of the increase in crude oil production totals for all Canada during the month of July, 1949, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Production of crude increased four per cent, although output of natural gas continued to drop. July 1949 figures for crude were 51 per cent higher than the same month last year.

Total crude production was 1,775,300 barrels, compared with 1,701,500 in June and 1,178,000 in July last year. During the first seven months of this year production was 11,588,100 barrels, an increase of 84 per cent over 1948.

Alberta produced 1,689,000 barrels in July, compared with 1,591,300 a year earlier. Leduc field's output rose from 524,900 barrels to 835,000; Redwater, which was not on production in July, 1948, produced 396,700 barrels. Turner Valley dropped to 316,400 from 345,600 and Lloydminster to 60,100 from 71,900.

Saskatchewan wells produced 54,400 barrels compared with 96,600 in July last year. Ontario 22,700 compared with 18,000, the North West Territories 6,600 compared with 30,700 and New Brunswick 1,700 barrels compared with 1,600.

Natural gas production fell to 3,473,000,000 cubic feet in July from 3,624,900,000 in June.

Natural gas production by provinments on hospital and medical bills.

The act provides for a maximum payment of $5,000 in the case of a death claim, although $10,000 is allowed for the death or injury of more than one person in a single accident. Under amendments to the act this year, unsatisfied judgments in property cases were included. The maximum payment in such cases is $1,000.

inces, with totals for June in brackets: Alberta, 2,807,300,000 (2,864,700,000); Ontario 624,400,000 712,400,000; New Brunswick 23,400,000 (30,200,000), and Saskatchewan 18,000,000 (17,600,000).

On Monday, Nov. 21 in St. Mary's Church, Rev. Fr. A. E. Tennant united in marriage Theresa Silbernagel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Silbernagel of Beiseker and Mr. Jacob Schmaltz of Kindersley, Sask.

The bride, charming in white satin and net veil, entered the church on the arm of her father.

Her sisters, Betty and Joyce, acted as bridesmaid and flower girl respectively. Betty chose mauve taffeta for the occasion while the pretty little flower girl wore blue.

Mr. Chris Schmaltz, uncle of the groom, acted as best man.

A wedding dinner for relatives and close friends was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Schmaltz.

EDINBOROUGH. — Scotland's Department of Health announces that for seven consecutive years since the start of the National Immunization Campaign the number of deaths from diphtheria in Scotland has fallen steadily.
